RESPECT FOR CIVIL SERVICE RULES

Advice to the Wife of a Member of the Cabinet - Advantages of Card Beceptions-Compliments For the "First Lady

In the Land." WASHINGTON, March 17 .- (Special. 1-President McKinley is going so slowly in the business of making appointments that the faithful office seekers are beginning to grumble a good deal. A large number of these gentlemen are still sitting around the hotels and haunting the White House, intensely eager for action. They have little sympathy with the president's policy of deliberate and cautious action which the country indorses so fully. The office seeker is too much interested from a personal standpoint to take a dispassionate view of things. All he knows is that he wants his job, and wants it quickly. He cannot understand why there should be any delay, why the good thing for which the politi-cians fought in the recent campaign should be withheld from the boys who stood in the trenches. While there is considerable grumbling, it does not affect the president at all. He is taking things as easy as he can and seems in no more hurry to parcel out the offices than he was when he first came to Washington. The number of appointments made by him directly and the administration generally is still far be-low the number made by any administration of the last 50 years in the same length of time.

Enjoyed the Joke.

President McKinley preserves his good nature through all the trials and pressure incident to his official station. His bearing is still fine and courtly. He charms all who come in contact with him. He enjoys a joke too. One of his callers, an old man and a veteran Republican, who has hung about here for two weeks trying to get an office and making no discernible progress, made so bold as to say to the president:

"You are not going very fast, Mr. President, nowadays. Last fall no one could hustle around fast enough to suit you." "That's so," replied President McKinley ughingly. "I was doing the running then, and now you are doing it."

The reply pleased the veteran office seeker very much, but it is not recorded that he is any nearer his goal now than he was

There has really been a great change in the scene at the national capital, Instead of "Turn the rescals out!" we now hear many stories to the effect that prominent Democrats are to be kept in office, at least for some months; that all changes are to be made only after plenty of deliberation; that the civil service rules are to be re-spected in spirit as well as in form, and that merit is to count before everything

A Note of Warning.

At a little social reception I was much interested in the advice which the wife of an outgoing member of the cabinet gave to the wife of an incoming member. "What-ever else you do," said this lady of experi-"do not serve anything to cat or drink at your Wednesday afternoon recep-tions. If you do, you will regres it. We tried it, and we can tell you all about it. If you serve things to cat and drink, you will have a mob pouncing down upon you. People who never go out in society under any other circumstances will flock into your parlors. They will eat you out of house and home. They will crowd out your regular guests and not give the people you really want to see a ghost of a Where these unexpected and un desirable visitors come from is a mystery. but they do come, with their uncles, cousins and aunts. How they get wind of the fact that you are serving luncheon is another mystery, but they do. There seems to be some sort of freemasonry among their ilk. Decide upon a spread in your drawing room, salads and punch and such things, and it is all over town in a twin-We have had the horrible suspicion that the servants spread the news, and that some of the guests who come are their friends and relatives. Awful, isn't it? Take my advice and keep your tables bare." Here another society woman of experience chimed in and contributed her quota to the general fund of information concern-ing the babits of some residents of the national capital: "Lady Pauncefete, wife of the British embassador, was telling me the other day that when she first came to Washington she caused it to be known that she would receive her friends a certain afternoon each week. She did not send out cards, but extended a general invita-tion through the society columns of the tion through the society columns of the newspapers. What do you suppose hap-pened? Why, her house was filled with people whom no one had ever seen before or heard of. The wives of saloon keepers, the families of tradesmen, clerks in the de-partments, those estimable women who keep boarding houses, all sorts and conditions of folk, poured in upon her until member of the diplomatic corps or a per son in high official station was as much lost in the crush as the proverbial needle in the haystack. From that day to this Lady Pauncefote has never given an open afternoon. All the guests who come to her house do so by card invitation." Mrs. McKinley's Visitors.

Mrs. McKinley, despite her invalid condition, is getting on very well as the first lady in the land. She charms all who see her, for she is a sweet and simple woman. She receives many friends in the library, which is directly over the blue room of the White House. In this apartment President Arthur used to receive his business callers. President Harrison kept the room as an office for a time, too, and Mr. Cleve-land used it for a few months. But now beautifully furnished and is used by Mrs. McKinley as a sitting and reception room. The lady of the White House sits nearly all the time in an easy chair near the door which leads to her distinguished husband's office, so that he need not walk far when he comes out to see her for a mo ment, as he does many times a day always keeps her cane in hand and receives visitors with a grace as fine as that

nal Revenues Not Large Enough Figures Showing the Situation-Apeal for Prompt and Effective Action by

Washington, March 16.-The presint's message to congress on the finanal situation went to that body one y earlier than had been expected. he president had the document ready, t was intending to send it in today, as e did not think the two houses more than organize yesterday. They d this work so quickly, however, that pen he was notified yesterday after-n that congress was ready he deterned to send the message in at once. to the Congress of the United States; gretting the necessity which has refired me to call you together, I feel at your assembling in extraordinary ession is indispensable because of the ondition in which we find the revenues f the government. It is conceded that ts current expenditures are greater han its receipts, and that such a conlition has existed for now more than hree years. With unlimited means at our command, we are presenting the emarkable spectacle of increasing our public debt by borrowing money to meet the ordinary outlays incident upon even an economical and prudent administration of the government. An examination of the subject discloses this fact in every detail and leads inevitably to the conclusion that the condition of the revenue which allows it is unjustifiant and should be corrected.

Receipts Always Less Than Expended.

We find by the reports of the secre tary of the treasury that the revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1222 from all sources, were $425,863,260.22, and the expenditures for all purposes were $415,958,803.56, leaving an excess of receipts over expenditures of $9,514,-453.66. During that fiscal year, $40,570,-467.98 were paid upon the public debt, which has been reduced since March 1, 1889, $259,076,890, and the annual interest charge decreased $11,684,576.60. The receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, amounted to $461,716,-561.94, and its expenditures to $450,-274,887.65, showing an excess of receipts over expenditures of $2,341,674.29.

Since that time the receipts of no fiscal year, and with but few exceptions of no month of any fiscal year, have exceeded the expenditures. The receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, were $372,892,493.29, and its expenditures $442,605,753.87, leaving a deficit the first since the resumption of specie payments of $69,803,260,58.

Deficit in 1895 842,805,228,18,

Notwithstanding there was a decrease of $16,769,128.78 in the ordinary expenses of the government as compared with the previous year, its income was still not sufficient to provide for its daily necessities, and the gold reserve in the treasury for the redemption of greenbacks was drawn upon to meet them. But this did not suffice, and the government then resorted to loans to replenish the re-

In February, 1894, $50,000,000 in bonds were issued and in November following a second issue of $50,000,000 was deemed necessary. The sum of $117,171,795 was realized by the sale of these bonds, but the reserve was steadily decreased until on Feb. 8, 1895, a third sale of $62,315,-400 in bonds for $65,116,244 was an-nounced to congress. The receipts of

A further loan of $100,000,000 was negotiated by the government in February, 1896, the sale netting $111,166,246, but the deficit continued. * * *

In January of this year the receipts, exclusive of postal revenues, were $24,-316,994.05, and the expenditures, exclusive of postal service, $30,269,389.29, a deficit of $5,952,395.24 for the month. In February of this year the receipts, exclusive of postal revenues, were $24,-400,979.38, and expenditures, exclusive of postal service, $28,796,056.66, a deficit of $4,395,059.26; or a total deficit of $186,-061,580.44 for the three years and eight months ending March 1, 1897. Not only are we without a surplus in the treasury, but with an increase in the public debt. There has been a corresponding increase in the annual charge from $22,893,883,20 in 1892, the lowest of any year since 1862, to $34,387,297.60 in 1896, or an increase of $11,493,414.40. It may be urged that even if the revenues of the government had been sufficient to meet all its ordinary expenses during the past three years, the gold reserve would still have been insufficient to meet the demands upon it and that bonds would necessarily have been issued for its repletion. Be this as it may it is clearly manifest, without denying or affirming the correctness of such conclusion, that the debt would have been decreased in at least the amount of the deficiency and business confidence immeasurably strengthened throughout the country. Congress should promptly correct the existing condition. Ample revenues must be supplied not only for the ordinary expenses of the government, but for the prompt payment of liberal pen-sions and the liquidation of the principal and interest of the public debt. In raising revenue duties should be so levied upon foreign products as to preserve home market so far as possible our own producer; to revive and increase manufacturies; to relieve and encourage agriculture: to aid and develope mining and building; and to ren-der to labor in every field of useful oc-cupation the liberal wages and adequate rewards to which skill and industry are justly entitled.

The necessity of the passage of a tariff law which shall provide ample revenue need not be further urged. imperative demand of the hour is the prompt enactment of such a measure, and to this object I earnestly recom-mend that congress shall make every endeavor. Before other business transacted let us first provide sufficient revenue to faithfully administer the gov ernment without the contracting of further lebt or the continued disturbince of our finances.

AS TO THAT SCRIP DECISION.

Facts of Its Publication Made a Sensation in the Department.

Washington, March 15.-The McKee scrip decision written by Commissloner Lamoreux has raised the loudest "buzz" in the interior department that has been heard there for years, and it may become louder. Meanwhile Secretary Bliss has ordered the case to be reopened, and people who thought the government for the fiscal year June | they owned about $50,000,000 worth of 20, 1895, were $290,373,203,30 and the ex- property in Chicago, which was swept penditures $433,178,428.48, showing a def- out of their ownership by the decision eux breathe with more freedom. The secretary's order is made because Lamoreux in opposition to all the rules procedure delivered a copy of his decision to one of the parties interested.

The man who got the copy was, it is said, P. J. Somers, of Milwaukee, of the counsel for the scrip locators. The fact that the original decision was found locked up in the commissioner's safe makes it, so the department lawyers say, the same as if it had been locked up in his bosom-it is no decision until it is promulgated, and its promulgation was forbidden by Secretary Francis. The statement is made also that the whole of the original decision except the signature is in the handwriting of one of the counsel for the scrip locators. Another fact is mentioned that makes the case peculiar, and this is a fact: On Aug. 3 last Lamoreux was asked for a hearing on an exactly similar case -scrip location on the same land-and refused even to hear the locators, saying that the case was not different from several other land scrip cases that had been decided adversely to the locators. The first knowledge of the higher officials of the department that the opinion had been formally drawn up and signed is stated to have been when ex-Secretary Carlisle, retained as associate counsel for the scrip side, came down to the department on the afternoon of the day that Secretary Bliss took the oath of office and asked that the opinion be promulgated. The department absolves Carlisle from wrong connection with the case.
